CELEBRATING 20 YEARS OF PROGRESS

Proposed Budget Cuts Would Halt Vital Weather Services

88th Year, No. 9 Fort Worth, Texas, March 4, 1982 Forty Pages

Closing of Four Regional Weather Centers Would Cut Off Warnings of Impending Disasters and Forecasts

The Weekly Livestock Reporter was advised by Charles K. Hayes, agricultural meteorologist, at College Station of the impending reduction of weather service to farmers and ranchers due to the proposed budget cuts in the latest Reagan Administration budget. Many of these critical services to the agricultural business have been vital to this segment of the economy for many years and have helped avert disastrous losses due to weather changes. Hayes points out that the proposed 1983 Federal budget would eliminate the nation's agricultural weather service. The national weather service (an agency of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) proposes to close the four existing regional agricultural weather centers, eliminate the entire fruit/forest program, and significantly reduce agricultural staffs at other multi-purpose state and regional forecast offices. Texas would see the closing of the agricultural weather center at College Station (this center also serves Oklahoma and New Mexico), as well as the end of the fruit/forest forecast service, which is important to citrus and winter vegetable growers in the lower Rio Grand Valley.

The House/Senate committee on commerce, science and transportation, and the appropriations committee for state, justice, commerce and the judiciary will be holding hearings between February 22 and March 17 on the proposed national weather service budget. This points to the immediate need for contacting your Senators and Congressmen.

Proposed by the national weather service, the closing of the existing agricultural weather centers at Auburn, AL, College Station, TX, Stoneville, MS, West Lafayette, IN, would eliminate the entire fruit/forest program that serves Florida, California, Texas and several northern areas.

Closing or significantly reducing agricultural weather staffs at other multi-purpose weather service offices across the nation. Savings to federal budget by eliminating the entire agricultural weather program $12 million.

Present services to Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico that would be lost: Soil temperature reporting and forecasting service. The daily agricultural weather advisories, which relate how on-going farm operations could be affected by the weather over the next 3 to 5 days. (Presently there are 6 regional advisories for Texas and one each for New Mexico and Oklahoma. All are issued daily over teletype circuits for use by broadcasters on TV and radio farm shows.) Seasonal and monthly agricultural weather outlooks and farm interpretation. Agricultural climatological services (first and last freeze dates, soil temperature normals, etc.) Meteorological support to integrated pest management programs including poison nut casebearer prediction, alfalfa weevil emergence prediction. Special projects such as the degree day 50 rice management program for Texas rice growers. The central Blacklands weather advisory. Agricultural weather research: adaptation of crop and soil models, insect and disease models. Fruit/forest forecasting and advisory service for the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas and the New Mexico Apple and Fruit growers.

Benefits of present program studies estimate that "avoidable" weather losses amount to nearly 6 percent of farmers and ranchers annual gross production costs. Current agricultural weather services help reduce these losses. A program with 50 percent effectiveness can reduce annual costs in Texas by $100 million, by $45 million in Oklahoma and by $15 million in New Mexico. These figures cover only crop production costs and not livestock.

In one documented case, farmers in the Texas coastal bend were saved $5 million in extra planting costs during February and March of 1978. Farmers there were successfully advised not to plant in unusually cold soils which would have prevented seed germination. Annual costs to run the College Station center (which serves Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico) are about $125 thousand. Costs and the lack of adequate information dissemination prevent private meteorologists from offering as affordable service to the typical farmer.

USDA was asked by Cargile to make five revisions in its proposals to more adequately assure that beef quality be fully maintained. The TSCRA revisions would require that palatability within each grade be more uniform and dependable than under present or proposed standards.

Cargile cited both scientific research and industry experience to show that the eating quality of Choice beef under TSCRA's proposals would be equal to that under present standards. And, furthermore, beef available under the new standards generally would have more edible meat per pound or dollar. Consumers would get more for their money.

Marbling, the tiny flecks of fat in the meat, has been overemphasized in predicting beef's palatability under present and proposed USDA standards. (CONT. ON PAGE 12)

THE WEAKNESS IS RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM . . .

Now that the debates are flat about over on the proposed new beef grading system of the USDA and the various beef marketers from breeding stock to feedlots to packers to wholesalers and restaurant folks have been heard one of the things that stands out has been the lack of unity among the cattlemen themselves. Some State associations like the Kansas Livestock Assn. and some breed associations like the American Angus Assn., disagree with the National Cattlemen's Assn. and the Texas Cattle Feeders Assn., and others as to what the position of the cattle producing industry should be.

It was over this among farmers and livestock producers. For instance, when the Beef Promotion program was launched and it was to be financed with various amounts of money to be checked. (CONT. ON PAGE 17)

Slaughter Cattle Say, Hogs Sold Lower At Markets On Monday
Higher supplies of slaughter cattle and hogs met bearish bids at the central markets on Monday as both beef and pork trades opened on a mostly weaker note. Fat steers and heifers were mostly weak to $1.50 lower and at most, barely closed at the full decline for the day. Some good to choice steers and heifers backed to feedlots at some markets. Slaughter cows and bulls were mostly weak to $1.00 lower.

Trade very slow in the Panhandle area Friday and over the weekend. Limited sales of slaughter steers and heifers weak, but hardly enough sold to establish price trends. Sales on 1,700 slaughter steers and 300 heifers. Steers: Several pens good and mostly choice 2-3, 66-70% choice, 1075-1125 lb. 66-70. Heifers: Few pens mixed good and choice 2-3 225 lb. 66-75. (CONT. JOHN E. COLLIER IV.
Texas Producer Heads American Simmental Assn.

Bozeman, Mt. — John E. Collier IV, of Stephenville, Texas, has assumed the presidency of the American Simmental Association. Collier, a member of the ASA Board of Trustees since 1977, was elected during the Association's 14th Annual Meeting and Convention, held in Bozeman, Montana.

Collier, representing 14,000 cattlemen in Texas, Oklahoma and surrounding states, was one of several spokesmen for cattle, packing, retail and food service industries commenting on USDA's proposed beef grading changes.

USDA was asked by Cargile to make five revisions in its proposals to more adequately assure that beef quality be fully maintained. The TSCRA revisions would require that palatability within each grade be more uniform and dependable than under present or proposed standards.

Cargile cited both scientific research and industry experience to show that the eating quality of Choice beef under TSCRA's proposals would be equal to that under present standards. Feedlot Trade Stymied Monday By Lower Bids, Beef Market
Amarillo, Mar. 1, (F.S.) — No sales of slaughter cattle reported in the Panhandle area early Monday. Feedlot reporting fair inquiry, however, most buyers just taking inventory of available cattle.

Trade very slow in the Panhandle area Friday and over the weekend. Limited sales of slaughter steers and heifers weak, but hardly enough sold to establish price trends. Sales on 1,700 slaughter steers and 300 heifers. Steers: Several pens good and mostly choice 2-3, 66-70% choice, 1075-1125 lb. 66-70. Heifers: Few pens mixed good and choice 2-3 225 lb. 66-75. (CONT. Biological Control Needed for Fire Ants—Kubick
Austin — "Trying to destroy fire ants with Amdro is like trying to kill an elephant with a b-b gun," State Representative Dan Kubick (D-Rockwall) said today.

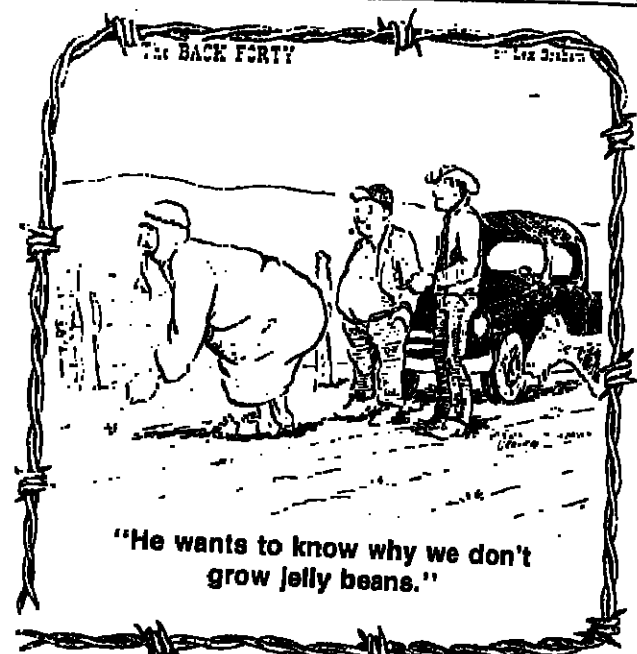

Kubick, Chairman of the Select Committee on Fire Ants, said Amdro was at best a stop-gap measure that might provide temporary relief. "The fire ant spread has reached epidemic proportions and there is currently no known remedy to totally destroy them," Kubick said.

The fire ant has spread across more than 100 counties in Texas. Birds, bees, livestock, earth worms, and humans are susceptible to attack. Fire ants, which can travel up to 30 miles per year, also have caused tremendous property damage.

Fire ants started out a problem primarily in the rural area. However, (CONT. ON PAGE 12)

Brangus Sires Make The Difference

Brangus-sired black baldies mean more—more size, more performance, and more money in your pocket. Steers are so popular with feeders and stockers that steers command a 5 cent premium, while good replacement heifers can sell as much as 10 cents higher. This year try Brangus bulls, and see the difference Brangus-sired black baldies can make.

Butcher of Lewistown, Mont., and Roy Meek of Draper, Va., were elected to serve on the 6-member Executive Committee along with the three elected officers.

More than 500 Simmental breeders and their families were on hand for the Florida-based convention. "Enthusiasm about the future of Simmental was very apparent," said ASA Executive Vice-President Earl B. Peterson. "As the breed grows in numbers and members, it becomes more and more apparent that Simmental have a vital role to play in the beef herd of America."

Three long-time figures in the development of Simmental cattle were honored by the World Simmental Federation. Receiving the first "Golden Book" awards in "recognition of contributions and service" were Dr. Horst Leopold, Kansas State University Animal Scientist; Dr. Harry Ferguson, 4-term ASA Trustee from Ansonia, Montana; and two-term ASA President Jerry Moore of Canton, Ohio.

Six new trustees were sworn in including: John Teagarden, LaCygne, Kan.; James Walthall, Windsor, Mo.; Jon Callender, Charlotte, Mich.; and Enos Groves, Fortville, Ind. The dards, Cargile said. This has caused cattlemen to over-feed cattle with expensive grains to get them to gain choice. That extra fat ends up with the packer and on the consumer's dinner plate.

Cattlemen Ready To Meet Consumer Demand For Leaner Beef

Other carcass traits, like fat cover, should be used in addition to marbling to guarantee the desired taste, tenderness and juiciness in beef, Cargile said. USDA should require about three-tenths of an inch of external fat over the 12th rib of the carcass on an adjusted basis before young cattle are graded Choice. Carcasses should have fat that is white in color, an indication that the beef received some finishing grains. Yellow fat color denotes large finishing and beef finished on large generally lacks the desired flavor and tenderness.

TSCRA also asked USDA to retain the Standard grade in its standards. Cargile said the proposed system could readily provide highly marbled beef for certain types of restaurants that insist on it as well as leaner beef for other parts of the food service industry and the retail store trade.

Biological Control Needed for Fire Ants-Kubliak

Infestations have been found in many large cities," Kubliak added. "This is a problem of great magnitude for all affected areas," he stated.

"I believe that the key to destroying the fire ant on a permanent basis is a coordinated, concerted effort by all of the nine states that are infested," Kubliak said. He also added that a buffer zone around the infested area should be found to try and prevent additional spreading. "Once the buffer zone has been formed, hopefully the ants can be contained until a permanent solution can be found."

Kubliak added that, in his opinion, biological controls will be the best solutions. "We need to find the natural enemies and predators of the fire ant," Kubliak said.

Kubliak said his sub-committee will be visiting infested areas of the state to allow everyone an opportunity to testify about the problem.

People using Amdro should carefully follow instructions on its application. The chemical should be used in very small amounts, sprinkled around the mound so as not to disturb the ants. Also, Amdro should only be used on a dry day with a temperature above 60 degrees. Amdro should be used within five days of purchase in order for it to be a peak effectiveness. Only a tablespoon per mound is needed.

Mexican Strike Was Threat To Screwworm Control Program

Austin — The threat of a strike at the screwworm facility in Mexico prompted authorities in Texas to assist in reactivating the Mission fly plant. "We cooperated with other agencies to make sure that our state's livestock producers would have the protection needed to keep Texas as free of screwworms as possible," Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, explained.

Sterile screwworm flies are being produced at the plant at Tuxtla Gutierrez in Mexico. The flies are dispersed throughout northern Mexico. They mate with native fly populations but no offspring result. Recently, three Mexican states were declared to be screwworm free.

Presently, an area of about 100 to 200 miles deep in northern Mexico is screwworm free. Plans call for the area to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec to be screwworm free by late 1983.

A strike of the Mexico plant could have resulted in setbacks to keep Texas free of screwworms. Texas Animal Health Commission personnel participated in reopening the Mission plant. About a year ago, the plant was "mothballed," but provisions were made so that it could be reopened if necessary.

Yield Grade 4 Discounts Important Event In 1981

Dave Ellicott doesn't like fat cattle. Neither do his customers. And as meat buyer for King Soopers, one of the largest volume meat retailers in the United States, Ellicott is in a position to do something about yield grade 4 cattle. What Ellicott does with yield grade 4's is simple — nothing. He doesn't want to waste his time looking at them and he certainly doesn't want to buy them, at any price.

What Ellicott does like is high yielding, lean cattle. And the reason he prefers them is because King Soopers' customers prefer lean beef.

In an effort to meet customer demand, King Soopers, a Denver based grocery chain, recently introduced "generic" beef. According to Ellicott, generic beef would be high good but is not USDA graded and is leaner than USDA Choice. Demand for the leaner generic beef grew rapidly and three weeks after it hit the meat counter, sales were around 50 percent of the total pounds of beef sold. Generic sales have stayed about 50 percent with choice yield grade 2's and 3's making up the other half.

Many other retail stores have instituted marketing programs for non-graded, high yielding, lean cuts of beef. Some, due to customer demand, have discontinued selling USDA Choice and Prime completely and only market lean, ungraded beef.

King Soopers generic beef is indicative of the wave sweeping the country. From producer to consumer, the trend is toward lean beef.

According to Dr. Greg Martin, North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) executive vice president, the move toward lean beef in all segments of the industry is the most significant event in 1981. He feels the effects of the trend will be felt for years to come.

"Increasing production costs with high interest rates have forced everyone to look for the most efficient cattle available," Martin says. "Small-framed, light muscled cattle don't have the growth, feed efficiency, leanness and overall profit potential the industry requires," he claims. Large framed, trim, well muscled cattle are more efficient in producing lean beef, he believes.

Martin feels crossbreds meet industry requirements better than straightbreds. "The need for increased efficiency will lead commercial cattlemen to use three or four breed crosses. By doing so, cattlemen can utilize continental breeds to maximize hybrid vigor and breed complementation," he says. Martin feels Limousin will be used to add muscling and remove excess fat.

"Son," the older worker replied, "you make me think of a thermometer in a cold room. You can make it register higher by holding your hand over it, but you won't be warming the room."

Stuph & Thangs

ed off each time an animal was sold at all levels there was great disagreement among livestock producers as to large numbers were dead set again any kind of checkoff on all sides that something be done to maintain the market for beef, but even today the opposition to the checkoff is vehement in many quarters. The rugged individualism of livestock producers was in evidence again.

Th' same thang appears each time the farm organizations are faced with a problem. The Farm Bureau, the Farmers Union, the American Farmers Organization and the NFO all come up with different ideas about what should be done to improve the economic position of farmers and ranchers and more often than not they are far apart in their solutions, although all of 'em admit th' problems are there and need some action.

As a typical example of th' problem this week Jim Hightower, th' populist candidate for Agriculture Commissioner of Texas, gave birth to th' idea that if th' Govt don't do somethin' about farmers' prices there should be a Multi-State Grain Compact formed which would make it illegal to purchase farm commodities for less than 80% of parity. His idea is to "save the family farm." He blissfully ignores th' fact that numbers of farms in Texas and th' country as a whole are increasing in numbers for th' first time in many, many years, and th' fact that efforts to withhold farm crops & livestock from th' market, have always failed in th' past. One reason being that all of th' producers don't want to cooperate in withholding actions and when some withhold th' others cash in. A grain cartel would be impossible to maintain and would surely concentrate th' Cheap Food Forces & overpower 'em.

Th' rugged individualism in th' agricultural sector makes it easy for Consumer Groups and Urban Legislators to divide the agricultural community and thus give 'em th' short end of the stick time after time. It is sad, but true, and th' lack of a united front appears to be th' real impossible dream insofar as agriculture is concerned.

Ever thine, The Editor.

P.S. Uncle Dunk notes where New York City Mayor Koch who has decided to run for Governor and was already faced with hard going in Upstate New York and should have given himself a kiss of death with that Playboy interview given before he decided to run for statewide office. Koch says th' rural life is a "hell" and that suburban life away from th' Big City is "heaven." That's out to do it. What is odd is how life in a New York City jungle can spawn such ignorance. Dunk figures that deal that was cut by th' Teamsters Union and th' Food Forces & overpower 'em.

RESERVE CHAMPION LIMOUSIN
STEER, SAN ANTONIO 1981

We proudly present you with 75 of the most impressive set of steers that will be offered in any one sale. Through our own selective breeding program we have been able to, through the years, raise competitive type steers. Last year in San Antonio and Houston alone, Dyer-Sims bred steers won four out of the six extremely tough Limousin classes, and stood 2nd in the fifth class.

This year, for the first time, we will feature an outstanding set of steers sired by the 1980 Grand Champion Bull at the National Western in Denver, SYBB Dakota Slick, that will certainly be worth seeing.

We will also have an awfully stout set of Keys and Key X Limy calves out of the top end of our commercial cows, sired by some very good 3/4 black Key bulls. And 10 purebred Limousin heifers out of the heart of our registered herd, sired by some of the most popular Limousin bulls around that will be available to you juniors.

All-American Hereford Expo Plans Moving, Show Date July 15-17

Des Moines — Plans are being made for the 1982 All-American Hereford Expo scheduled for July 15-17 at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines. Expo '82, hosted by the Iowa Junior Hereford Association, should prove to be one of the most exciting junior events staged in 1982.

Although a wide array of activities are planned for Expo, feature attraction will be one of the strongest junior heifer shows ever held with $12,000 in cash awards to be distributed across all entries.

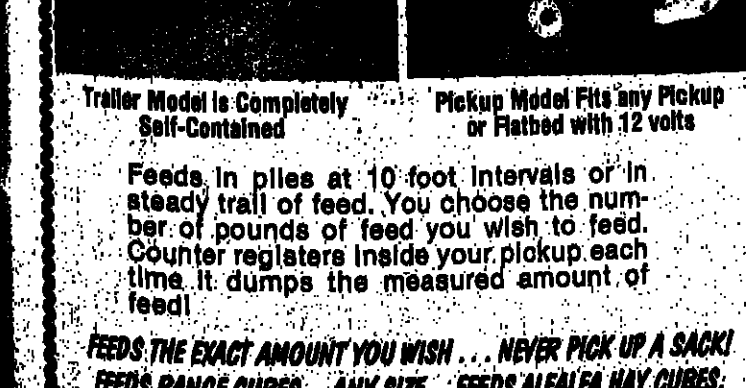

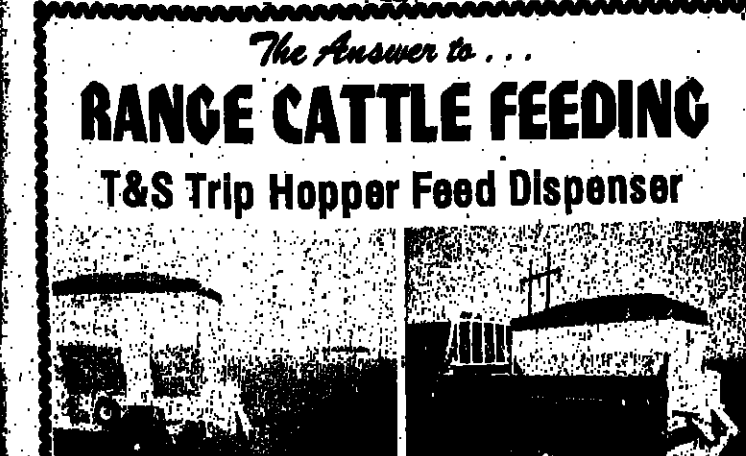

More than 250 heifers from throughout the United States are expected to compete in the standard American Hereford Association heifer show classifications. Special classes will be an important part of the show, including females bred and owned by exhibitors, breeder group-of-three females representing any combination of sires, a get-of-sire representing four females sired by one bull regardless of breeder, state junior association group-of-five females and best junior A.I. heifer, the result of an A.I. certificate received from the AHA junior A.I. program.

Always a featured attraction at Expo is the national showmanship contest as state winners from across the United States compete for the coveted award. This year's Expo will center around the theme "Charging Ahead in Changing Times."

SIMBRAH NEWS

Dr. Guerra Believes Simbrah "Ideal For South Texas Area"

McAllen, Texas — Dr. Lauro G. Guerra of McAllen, who is also a Simbrah breeder, believes "Simbrah are truly the animals for this part of the country."

Dr. Guerra bases his belief on experience with Simbrah and other breeds he has tried in the dry, arid brushy South Texas country. "The Simbrah are more resistant to parasites, insects and disease — getting those attributes from the Brahman blood they carry," he said.

"But more important, I think, are the 25 to 40 percent heavier weaning weights of the calves," he added. He believes, that although the mature Simbrah cows weigh 1000-1150 pounds, they provide more milk from the sparse forage they find in this area than other breeds.

"The mature Simbrah cows are not much larger than mature Angus cows, so the stocking-rate per acreage can be about the same as Angus, and higher than some of the bigger cattle breeds," Dr. Guerra said.

Dr. Guerra also said that he has found Simbrah to be earlier developing sexually than other breeds and highly fertile, thus providing better average calf crops. "The milking ability of the Simmental combined with the disease resistance, tolerance for parasites, insects, and harsh environment of the Brahman, makes the Simbrah an ideal animal for this area," he said.

Dr. Guerra said that his Simbrah cows wean calves weighing in the 600 to 650 pound range, some more, giving them an advantage of 50 to 120 pounds over most other breeds in his area.

"These cattle have no calving problems — all that I've spent on veterinary work has been inspections of cattle for shipment to buyers in other areas to meet requirements of the Texas Animal Health Commission," he said.

"We haven't had to assist any calving — and that's a big advantage, getting a live calf on the ground," he said.

Dr. Guerra sums up, "Early sexual development," "tremendous fertility," "Resistance to parasites, insects and diseases," "Weaning weights 25-40 percent better than other breeds," "good conversion of forage to milk by the mother cows," and 1000-1150 pound cows that wean 45 to 60 percent of their body weight each year," makes these cattle ideal for this area.

Dr. Guerra's herd is not big by some standards, around 100 head, but the quality is high — he uses fullblood Simmental cows and breeds to fullblood Judging-type Brahman bulls, then crosses back with crosses of various mixtures of blood to result in a 5/8th Simmental-3/8th Brahman line, half-bloods, and 3/8th Simmental-5/8 Brahman blood.

"With these mixtures, I can get the desired 5/8ths-3/8ths cattle from various breedings," he said.

He said he has sold most of his bulls of breeding age this year in lots of 10-12 head to commercial ranchers.

"That's where these bulls fit in the best — in commercial herds where the producer is looking to produce the most beef per acre — at the least cost," he concluded.

BRADY BROWNLOW

Brownlow Named Rio Paisano Manager

Riviera, Texas — Brady Brownlow has been named general manager of Rio Paisano Ranch, a division of Horlock Land and Cattle Company. Rio Paisano, which produces purebred Beefmaster cattle, is located near Riviera, Texas, near the birthplace of the modern Beefmaster breed. The ranch is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horlock of Houston.

Brownlow previously served as ranch research director for Genesis II at Athens, Texas, and for the last three years has been co-manager and herdman for Gamble Creek Beefmasters, Parrish, Florida.

He is a member of the progressive Breed Improvement Committee of Beefmaster Breeders Universal and his leadership and knowledge in the breed were further recognized early this year when he was named judge of the prestigious South Texas Beefmaster Futurity in Houston. "I'm excited about becoming a part of the Horlock operation. Their entire family is dedicated to selecting and breeding outstanding Beefmaster cattle. We intend to build one of the premier herds in the breed," Brownlow said.

Brownlow and his family are living on the ranch at Riviera. He may be contacted at Rio Paisano Ranch, P.O. Box 130, Riviera, Texas, 75879, telephone, 512-394-5818. The ranch's Houston address is P.O. Box 52608, Houston, Texas, 77052, telephone, 713-866-3826.

Which way from here? The grains continue to erode in price. Rallies can be expected and we prefer to be sellers. Crops world-wide appear in excellent shape and the dollar remains strong. These fundamentals plus very negative market psychology leaves us "bearish." Cattle producers should take advantage of the recent strength to look in profits for cattle to be marketed during the next 30 to 60 days. Our technical traders shorted April Cattle at 65.55 with stops just over 64.00.

Hog producers should now be at least 75 percent hedged for their 1982 production. We prefer to sell April hogs on rallies to 48.50 with stops over .50 cents on a close basis. March bellies should be sold at .73 cents with stops just over .74 cents on a close basis.

Marcus Crow Shows Houston Reserve Champion Female

Houston — Marcus Crow of Andrews was the lone Texas exhibitor to win in the "Champion of Champions" Maine-Anjou Show at the 1982 Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo. His 19-month-old heifer, "MC Elvira," took the reserve grand champion female honors. Three Iowa breeders took the other top honors: JB Ranch and Hollyshire, Inc., of Polk, showed "Calberta Commander 40M" to grand champion bull of the show. The veteran of numerous show rings, the bull recently took top honors at Denver and Fort Worth. The Reserve champion bull was "MPT Mainstream," a 18-month-old 1,300-pound animal shown by K & A Farm of Ida Grove, Iowa.

Dry Creek Cattle Co. of Manning, Iowa, rounded out the string of victories with "LBB Angel M88," grand champion female.

Dr. Gary Minish, professor of animal sciences at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, was the judge.

The "Champion of Champions" show is by invitation only to the top 20 Maine-Anjou females and top 20 bulls in the United States, made eligible by points won in specified prior shows.
